U. S. CIRCUIT COURT -CHIEF JUSTICE S. P. CHASE, PRESIDING

The court opened at ten o'clock Saturday morning, Chief Justice Chase and Judge Bryan

The jury roll was called and the petit and pleas jurors answered to their names. In the cases of Charles Richardson and John Peter Richardson, executors of John P. Richardson, deceased, vs. J. Motte Allston and Eliza A. Manning vs. J. Motte Allston and John L. Manning, on motion of W. D. Porter, and with consent of all parties, it was ordered that if, upon the trial of the cases at law, the defendants obtain a verdict against the complainants in these cases upon any of the pleas in bar, they shall have leave to enter up judgment thereon, subject to the plea of plene administravit: and that the issues under said plea be referred to Martin L. Wilkins, as special referee, to act as master in chancery, to take the account of the said executors according to the principles of this court under said ples of plene administracil, in which account the executors shall not be charged with the value of any negroes, whether in the invento ry or not, who have not been converted into money or any other personal property which can be proved to have been taken, lost or destroyed by the armed forces of the United States, or other unavoidable casualty, and that the said referee may report to the court every fact deemed important by either party.

Chief Justice Chase then delivered the following opinion of the court:

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES-DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA—CAROLINE A.
JOHNSON AND JOHN A. JOHNSON, TRUSTEES, VS.
JOHN BICHARDSON, ADMINISTRATOR OF MARY

RICHARDSON.

The only question raised by the plea in this case is one of jurisdiction.

The object of the bill is to obtain against the the detendant, as administrator of Mary Richardson, deceased, a decree in favor of Caroline A. Johnson for her distributive share of an estate, which it is alleged has been collected and is held by him, and for the payment of a sum of money due from the intestate.

The defendant is a citizen of Georgia, but derives his authority as administrator, from

The defendant is a citizen of Georgia, but derives his authority as administrator from the grant of letters of administration, by the proper court of South Carolina. The plaintiffs are citizens of South Carolina. The relief sought is against the defendant in the capacity of administrator, and the plea sets up the fact that the defendant is administrator under the grant of one of the States, and bound by the law of the State to account as such for his administration of the estate of the decased in the courts of the State.

the deceased, in the courts of the State, as a bar to the prosecution of any suit against him in the courts of the United States.

bar to the prosecution of any suit against him in the courts of the United States.

There has been much controversy and no little diversity of judgment on the question thus presented both at the bar and on the bench, and the decisions are by no means harmonious. Fortunately, we are spated the labor of examining the question upon principle, by the authority of a very recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

In the case of Payne vs. Hook, not yet reported, Ann Payne, a citizen of Virginia, brought her suit in equity in the Circuit Court for the District of Missouri, against Zaddock Hook, a citizen of Missouri, and public administrator of the county of the intestate, and his sureties on his official bond, for her distributive share of the estate. A demurrer was was filed to the bill, and was sustained by the Circuit Court, and the bill was dismissed. The case was taken by appeal to the Supreme Court.

Court.

It will be seen from this statement that the very question now before us was then brought before the Supreme Court. The court upon full argument held that the suit was properly brought, and reversed the decree of the Circuit Court. This authority is decisive, and the plea must be overruled.

Mr. J. J. Pope, solicitor for complainant, made the following motion, which was granted: The plea filed in the above case by the dedendant, John Richardson, administrator, having been overruled, it is ordered that the defendant do file his answer to the above bill, on or before the rules day in July next, upon payment of the costs of this term.

Alexander McLeod vs. T. C. Calicott. J. B. Campbell, Esq., appeared for plaintiff; D. T. Corbin, United States District Attorney, for defendant.

This was a case for trial by the jury, and an action of trover for the recovery of thirty-nine mains of this well known and exceedingly pop- bales of cotton, alleged by counsel for plaintiff ular young salesman, lately connected with the | to have been wrongfully taken from the posses-Mr. T. C. Calicott, a citizen of New York, and that the property so taken was wrongfully converted by defendant to his own use, and that without probable cause, right or color of

> Counsel for plaintiff introduced testimony to show that Dr. McLeod raised the cotton, was subjected after the war to an onerous trial by the Provost Court of Marlboro' District, acquitted, and the cotton ordered to be released. That after this, Mr. Calicott, being fully advised of what had occurred, seized the cotton at the depot of the Northeastern Railroad Company, notwithstanding the factor (Mr. L. D. Mowry) went to him, represented the circumstances of the case, and asked its release to him, offering to give security, to be approved by Mr. Calicott, if he or the Government of the United States or any one represented by them should esta blish any just claim to it. Mr. Calicott retained the cotton, and an application was made to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington, and upon a statement of the facts he ordered its discharge. Counsel for plaintiff advised their client at the time not to comply with the conditions required by the Secretary of the Treasury requiring him (Dr. McLeod) to state there was probable cause for the seizure of his cotton, and Mr. Calicott required, in addition to that, a bond to indem> aify himself against damages, &c. On the part of the defendant, testimony was ntroduced to show that Mr. Calicott was special supervising agent of the Treasury Department and received this cotton under the provisions of the act of Congress of the 12th of March, 1868, relative to captured and abandoned property; that he took it under color of that act, received it and transmitted it according to the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury to Simeon Draper, the proper special agent at New York, for sale. Testimony was introduced to show that the cotton was not Dr. McLeod's; that a large portion of it was sold to the Confederate States Government in 1869: that he had no right to retain it; that he had it repacked and remarked and forwarded to Charleston.

> Counsel introduced a certified official report of Mr. Calicott to the department at Washington on the subject, which report was required to be made under the act, and that Mr. Calicott acted in good faith and under strict instructions of the Treasury Department; also that the Provost Court had no jurisdiction

> The hearing of the testimony occupied the attention of the court up to three o'clock, when the further hearing of the case was postponed to ten o'clock this morning.

THE NEGRO BOND CASES Decision of Judge Carpenter-The Validity of the Bonds Affirmed.

His Honor Judge Carpenter has given the following decision on the question of the validity of bonds given in payment of the purchase

JULIET G. ELLIOTT VS. WM. HENRY TRESCOT AND WILLIAM WHALEY. This was an action of debt on bond, given by defendants to plaintiff on the — day of —, A. D. 1857, in the penal sum of twenty-eight thousand and eighty ($28,080) dollars. The defendants pleaded seven pleas. The first was the general issue of non est factum, and the last pleaded payment. Some of the other pleas set up as a defence that the bond was secured by a mortgage of slaves, whereby the slaves had been conveyed to the plaintiff by the defendant Trescot, with a defeasance in case of payment.

the defendant Trescot, with a defeasance in case of payment.

That the defendant had failed to pay according to the condition of the bond. That thereupon the property in the slaves vested absolutely in the plaintiff and the bond was discharged. The other pleas set up the emancipation of the slaves by the Convention of 1865.

To the first and last plea the plaintiff put in a similitur, and issue was joined thereon. To all the other pleas he made a profert of the mortgage and put in a general demurrer to each; the detendant joined in demurrer. The pleadings and the statements at the bar admitted that the consideration of the bonds sued on was the purchase of slaves.

A preliminary motion was made to strike the case from the docket, under the 34th Section of the 4th Article of the Constitution of this State, adopted in March, 1868, which is in these words:

Section 34. All contracts, whether under seal or not, the consideration of which were for the purchase of slaves, are hereby declared null and void and of no effect; and no suit, either at law or equity, shall be commenced or prosecuted for the enforcement of such conprosecuted for the enforcement of such contracts, and all proceedings to enforce satisfaction or payment on judgments or decrees rendered, recorded, enrolled or entered upon such contracts, in any court of this State, are hereby prohibited, and all orders heretofore made in this State in relation to such contracts, whereby property is held subject to decision as to the validity of such contracts, are also hereby declared null and void and of no effect."

I am of the opinion that this section of the Constitution of this State is in conflict with the 10th Section, 1st Article of the Constitution of the United States, in that it impairs the obligation of contracts, and that it is therefore null and void.

obligation of contracts, and that it is therefore null and void.

The motion is refused,
After full consideration of the points raised by the demurrer, I am of the opinion that the pleas present an insufficient defence to the action on the bond, and upon these pleas order the postea to be delivered to the plaintiff.

The attorneys in the cause having filed their consent in writing that the issue of fact be tried and determined by the court without the intervention of a jury, I determine that the defendant did make, execute and deliver to the plaintiff the bond set forth in the pleadings, that no part thereof has been paid, and that upon the first and last pleas the plaintiff is entitled to enter judgment on the penalty of the said bond. And it is so ordered.

R. B. Carpenter.

DR. JAMES MOULTRIE. - Dr. James Moultrie the last scion of an illustrious race, breathed his last on Saturday morning, the 29th instant. He was the son of Dr. Alexander Moultrie, and grandson of General Moultrie, of Revolutionary renown. He was born in Charleston. and at the time of his death was in his 77th year. When still quite young, he was sent to a school in England; but after his return in early manhood he studied medicine in this city in the office of Drs. Samuel Wilson and Alexander Barron; and our own college not then being in operation, he proceeded to Philadelphia, where he graduated. He returned to Charleston, and here practiced his profession with the most flattering success. For many years he was physician to the Marine Hospital, and availed himself of that opportunity to give clinical lectures to the many students who followed him through the wards. About the year 1833 he was elected Professor of Physiology in the Medical College of this city, which position he occupied and adorned till 1866, when he resigned his chair because of the infirmities of advancing age. He was elected President of the American Medical Association, at its meeting in this city. His contributions to science were numerous; many of them published in the journals of the day. His principal labors, however, scientific and literary, were given for the advancement of the interests of the institution, of the faculty of which he was a distinguished member. He was deeply attached to the Medical College of South Carolina, and never felt more at home than when lecturing to his classes on the mysteries of physiology. He was many years in advance of some of the foremost expounders of this branch of medical science, and appeared to have a singularly clear intuition in regard to the correlation of the sciences, and the oneness of design pervading Nature in all her ramifications.

Dr. Mouitrie was a thorough scholar; a man of more than ordinary natural endowments. and of rare cultivation. He ceased to study and learn, only when he ceased to live. We have met few savans in this country who were more entitled to that distinguished appellation, He walked no beaten track in his lectures. He searched and proved everything for himself, and to this end shunned no labor, mastering Comparative Anatomy and Natural History, together with Mechanics, and every other science that promised, proximately or remote-ly, to shed light upon his chosen branch. Several of his friends had been for years urging him to commit his peculiar views on many of these subjects to paper, and at the time of his death he was, we believe, engaged in doing

Dr. Moultrie was a finished gentleman as well as a finished scholar-of unblemished character, gifted with inscrutable grace of manner and expression—beloved and honored by every one. His remains were interred yes-terday afternoon at the cometery of the Unitazian Church, a large circle of friends paying the last offices of respect in assisting at his ob-

Save the medal, all the prizes were books and cards illustrating sacred history. On Thursday it is proposed to take the children and the orphans out into the woods at the Schuetzenplatz.

DECORATION OF THE GRAVES OF THE FEDERAL DEAD .- On Saturday afternoon the graves of the Federal dead at Magnolia, about one hundred and twelve in number, were decorated, in accordance with orders from the Grand Army of the Republic, Post No. 1, and under a committee of ladies, of which Mrs. L. T. Potter was president, appointed for that purpose. There was quite a large gathering, chiefly composed of colored persons, around a stand erected in the rear of the chapel, and draped with the United States colors. This stand was occupied by prominent members of the grand army and noted Republicans and the ladies of the committee. The exercises were conducted by Commander N. K. Reid, who introduced the Bansier, colored. The graves were then tastefully decorated by the ladies of the committee with evergreens and flowers, the band the while playing a solemn air. The ceremonies concluded, the Rev. Mr. Webster read some stanzas that had been sent for the occasion by an "absent friend," and with a prayer by the Rev.

Brown, colored, the assemblage dispersed. The spot where the graves lie is enclosed by a neat paling fence, on which the stars and stripes were gracefully festooned. Throughout the proceedings a respectful silence was mairtained, and the exercises were conducted with becoming desorum.

The following letter was received from Chief Justice Chase in response to an invitation to

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 29, 1869.

Dear Sir—Your note inviting me to attend the ceremony of decorating at Magnelia Cemetery the graves of the brave men who fell in defence of the Union during the recent civil war, only reached me this morning. I am very sorry that I cannot be with you on this most interesting occasion; but it is now too late to make the necessary arrangements.

The nation cannot too tenderly cherish the memory of her dead heroes, or too watchfully guard the well-being of those who survive. And may we not indulge the hope that ere long we who adhered to the national cause will be prompt also to join in commemorating the heroism of our countrymen who fell on the other side, and that those who now specially mourn their loss, consenting to the arbitrament of arms, and resuming all their old love for their country and our country, one and infor their country and our country, one and in-divisible, will join with us in like commemo-ration of the fallen wave of the army of the Union?

The dead are not dead. They have only gone before, and now see are The dead are not dead. They have only gone before, and now see eye to eye. Why may not we all borrow from their sacred graves oblivion of past differences and henceforth unite in roble and generous endeavor to assure the honor and welfare of our whole country, of all her States and of all her citizens?

Very respectfully, yours,
